

Sinclair Broadcasting should not be allowed to use the public airwaves to air one-sided propaganda during election time.

I think it is fine to air the broadcast, as long as they disclose the true nature of what it is and where it comes from, and as long as they give equal time to the other candidate by airing an equally one-sided piece. If each piece were presented to the public as partisan pieces and the public encouraged to make up their own minds, that would be great. A bi-partisan discussion following each would be fantastic.

In other words, the media has an obligation to either, A) be non-partisan, or B) represent themselves and/or their material as being one-sided.

Anything less than equal time is an abuse of the public airwaves and I feel is detrimental to our democracy.

Sincerely,
Blake Beltram
